

CPG Company Increases Conversions Through Personalized, Real-Time Marketing

Company Overview

A billion-dollar consumer packaged goods (CPG) company with a world-class portfolio of brands and an unrivaled distribution capability, this innovative beverage company is capitalizing on digital and cloud technologies to build new direct-to-consumer revenue channels with a focus on increasing long-term customer loyalty.

Challenges + Goals

With more than 2,400 data elements across more than 20 unintegrated data sources, this company lacked a holistic understanding of its customers. This made engagement in an omnichannel environment difficult, creating the real possibility of customer friction and frustration. The company identified the improvement of online and offline engagements with hyper-personalized messages and relevant offers as a key step to resolve this issue. The company anticipated that by delivering a seamless, personalized experience it could drive growth, increase loyalty and optimize marketing spend.

Winning Solution

rgOne collected and integrated data from multiple disparate sources, aggregating first, second, and third-party data to create a unified customer profile and real-time, cross-channel data visibility.

With a comprehensive golden record of every customer that included an additional 300 attributes, the company used rgOne to layer big data processing, machine learning and omnichannel orchestration capabilities and create a real-time recommendation engine that customizes product recommendations across multiple channels.
